WARREN PORTER PRESIDENT OF '49-'50 STUDENT COUNCIL

Commencement Day to Feature Dedication of New Building

A new addition to the Commencement Day Program will be the formal dedication of the youngest building on the campus, Middlebrook Hall. Bishop V. O. Weidler of the Southwest Area (UB) will be in charge of the ceremonies which are to begin at two o'clock.

Bishop C. H. Stauffacher of the Southwest Area (EV) will be the Commencement speaker in the morning. The York College Choir is also to bring special music.

The day's events are to include further a twelve o'clock luncheon for all students, parents, alumni, and visitors. Dr. S. B. Williams will preside as master of ceremonies, and the honored guests will include the architect, contractors, and all conference superintendents of the Southwest and Pacific Areas.

The York College Alumni Association will hold its business meeting at three o'clock.

All effort is being made to secure the largest attendance ever to visit the campus for this outstanding day in the history of the college.

Alumni Attention

Milton Maurer, president of the Alumni Association announced that plans had been formulated for the alumni program of commencement day. The alumni banquet is to be part of the dedication program of Middlebrook Hall.

Mr. Maurer said that it had been decided that anything to follow the dedication would seem to be anti-climactic and that therefore reservations for alumni would be made at the dedication dinner in an exclusive corner of the new dining hall. The alumni business meeting will follow the commencement program of the morning, he added.

Lois Miller Re-elected Pantherette President

Other officers that have been chosen are these: Bachel Langenberg, junior, Woodruff, Kans., vice president; Joan Coleman, freshman, Riverdale, Calif., secretary; Darlene Swartz, sophomore, York, treasurer; Carolynn Meeker, junior, Enid, Okla., drill leader; Dorothy Burhoop, sophomore, McCool, sell captain; Lavona Dvorak, freshman, Swisher, Ia., chapel captain; Evelyn Thomas, freshman, Topeka, Kans., membership captain, and Doris Kirkpatrick, sophomore, Trenton, Mo., student council representative.

The Pantherettes, girls' pep organization, is completing its third year of activity. It is one of the youngest campus organizations.

Student Body Chooses Porter

Warren Porter

"I only hope that I can help make the organization as efficient and active as it has been this year. I'm appreciative of the honor and feel a strong sense of duty toward it," commented Warren Porter upon his recent election to head the student council for next year. Porter was chosen in a recent all-student election.

UNUSUAL MOOD TO DOMINATE TODAY'S CHAPEL

The chapel program this morning promises to be an interesting mixture of Persian folk-lore and Shakespearean drama. For at this time the theme of the 1949 Marathon will be revealed and the Alpha Psi Omega will hold its initiation program.

The year-book staff will introduce to the student body "O-Mar Athlon," the cartooned character who leads the reader through the pages of the new year-book. An invitation will also be extended at this time for all students to attend the big Marathon party tonight in the library. At this party the books will be distributed, setting a new record for early delivery date.

The three neophytes of the local chapter of the national dramatic fraternity who have been noted in their strange garb already this morning will fulfill the last stage of their requirements for acceptance into the Alpha Psi Omega by presenting their portion of the chapel program this morning.

ROBERT SEIGEL IS Y.M. GUEST SPEAKER

A talk on "Business Ethics" was presented at a recent YMCA meeting by Mr. Robert Seigel, secretary of the York Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Seigel stressed the three aspects of business relationships: clerk and employer, firm and customer, firm and competitor; with the honesty, loyalty, courtesy, and fairness necessary to each one.

Moonlight and Roses Is Theme of Banquet Last Night

Seniors Guests of Juniors In Annual Formal Banquet

"Moonlight and roses bring wonderful memories..." At least these lines will bring to the juniors and seniors memories of one of the closing events of the school year. The annual junior-senior formal banquet, with the theme "Moonlight and Roses," was held last night at the York Country Club. The setting was a beautiful rose garden lighted by white candles and a starlit sky. Quiet dinner music was provided by Mrs. Ivan Greuter at the piano.

Three roses and three moonbeams in the person of Barbara Benfer, freshman, Robinson, Kan., Anabel Mytholar, freshman, Shelby, Catharine Walker, sophomore, Maize, Kans., Donald Erfourth, sophomore, St. James, Minn., James Potter, freshman, Peetz, Colo., and Herbert Kamm, freshman, Platte Center, respectively, introduced the program. By listening to a 'magic rock,' (really a piece of the moon), the three roses and the three moonbeams detected and announced each number. These included group singing; a reading, "The Nightingale and the Rose," read by Hope Howland, manager of the college bookstore; a duet, "For You," sung by Barbara Benfer and Herbert Kamm; a 'talk' to the seniors by Prof. Donald Danker of the department of political science; a violin solo, "To Each His Own," played by Janet Duncan, sophomore, Davenport, Ia.; presentation of a gift to their sponsor, Prof. Charles Bissett, by the junior class; a piano solo, "Moonlight Sonata," played by Harold Holton, senior, Russell, Ia.

Recent Campus Improvements Noted

York College is continuing to progress in its campaign for campus beautification with a wide variety of projects.

Raised-wood panel name-plates have been added to Hulitt Hall and the library. A large "York College" sign has been completed, which will be mounted on the south-west corner of the campus, facing the down-town area. 70 trees have been set out near the gym and veterans' housing area.

Projected improvements include bleachers, designed to accommodate thirty people, at the much-used tennis courts. Work is underway on a rock-garden west of the courts. A lily-pond is planned near the south-west corner of the Administration Building. Landscaping of Middlebrook Hall will be carried on into the fall.

Of interest is the fact that all the above work is being done by campus men.

F. Vorce and F. Hergert Head 'Burr Next Year

As a climax to his college journalistic career, Fred Vorce, junior, Brookfield, Mo., will edit the Sandburr for the coming year. The chief business position will be handled by Forrest Hergert, sophomore, Alexander, Kans. The decision as to who would hold these positions for the coming year was made recently in the student council.

Vorce is completing a year as Marathon editor as well as rounding out two years of editing the sports page of the Sandburr. Tennis, football, and basketball refereeing as well as drama and music are included in his field of interests.

Business Manager Hergert has been a member of the Sandburr staff this past year. He is a member of O. B. N., Zetas, Student Council, Life Work Recruits and I. R. C.

These two men will take over their duties with the next issue of the Sandburr.

Alpha Psi Omega Initiates and Elects

James Potter, freshman, Peetz, Colo., Anabel Mytholar, freshman, Shelby, and Don Erfourth, sophomore, St. James, Minn., were accepted into the membership of the Eta Kappa cast of the Alpha Psi Omega Dramatic Fraternity, Tuesday evening in the annual initiation ceremony.

Fred Koontz, junior, Des Moines, was elected to the position of cast director. Miss Mytholar will serve as stage manager and Jim Potter as business manager for the coming year.

Keynote of Drama Production to Be "Arabian Nights"

An "Arabian Nights" theme will be the keynote of the York College Players' production which will be presented at the city auditorium on May 24.

Scheherazade, the exotic heroine of "A Thousand and One Nights," will again hold her audience spellbound while the "Players" dramatize her tales. Georgann Hoff, sophomore, Los Alamos, N. M., will portray the eloquent queen who entertains His Majesty Harold Walker, senior, Santa Cruz, N. M.

Riley and Embree Head Marathon

The married veteran element of the student body is heavily represented in the choice of Marathon heads for the coming year. Glen Riley, Wichita, Kans., and Paul Embree, Merna, are the newly elected editor and business manager respectively.

These men, as is the custom, were nominated by their class — sophomore — and elected by the student council. They will probably begin organizing their staff soon so that the work on the publication can begin early next fall.

Bonnie King, freshman, Des Moines, Ia., will be one of the less fortunate members of the royal harem.

Three senior drama majors will direct the continuity jointly, and each have charge of one of Scheherazade's stories.

Editorials

GUESS I'LL CHECK IN . . .

By counting up on my fingers and toes several times I come to the realization that now it is my turn to bow out as editor of the Sandburr. Here is my golden opportunity to write that scathing editorial which condemns all the many wrongs which go unnoticed around the campus. With one last flourish I can reveal dramatically the great crimes committed around me to which all are so blind. On the other hand here is the chance to thank those who have helped me so much in these past two years, those who have received cold glares of disapproval and numb silences from me all too frequently, I fear.

But somehow I don't feel inclined to write either of those editorials. There are wrongs, yes. But could I with one sweep of my hand remove them all, I would be extremely selfish in doing so. Perhaps the greatest phase of the education of a college student is the evolution of recognizing wrongs, striving to overcome them, then outgrowing them. No, I shall leave them with my blessing to the coming generation of students.

And as for my thank-you's . . . well, Thank you, all of you. I'll admit that you've made me annoyed at times . . . many times. Late copy, forgotten stories, alibis all add up to an irate editor. However the old "coals of fire" idea really worked when like a bunch of troupers you'd all pitch in—gripping to be sure—but we'd get the 'Burr out on time.

I'm not sad. I'm happy. I'm very glad to turn the guiding of the Sandburr over to the new staff. They'll have fun too and they'll do a good job. I'm happy that I have had these two years of dabbling in printer's ink to add to my store of college memories. And I'm happy to be getting on to my next position on whatever staff it may be.

Guess The Next Word

By Rotten Robert

Mr. Huebert: Robert, this is an interesting theme. It has originality and is clever in spots. In content it deserves at least an "A" . . .

His chick: Robert, you are a clean cut, handsome American boy. I'd just love to go out with you tonight, . . .

Sandburr sports page: The Panthers, with relentless force and blazing courage, would have piled up a score of 100 to 1, . . .

The Dean: With your talent, Robert, and your hard-working ambition, you would be on the honor roll, . . .

Room-mate: I know that you need the money, and I'm your buddy, . . .

Mrs. Sill: We were planning to have T-bone steaks, French fries, shrimp cocktail, and ice cream for supper tonight, . . .

Helen Jo: I imagine that you're a hard-working, ambitious boy; and I have sympathy for your financial status, . . .

Dr. Bisset: I believe that 7:40 is very early and I know how hard it is to leave a nice soft bed, . . .

Mrs. Luper: I realize that you two are in love and that this is spring, . . .

Denny A.: Boys, I imagine that in some cases it might be hard to be in before 12, . . .

Key-word—"BUT".

COMING UP!

The next issue of the SANDBURR will carry the latest tabulation on the deluge of engagements, weddings, and births which has swept the campus this year.

"Over the Rainbow" Is Theme of May Fete

Everybody is singing it, but honestly, it is not due to the wet spring weather. "Over the Rainbow" just happens to be the theme of the May Day Fete this year. And the enthusiasm and hard work of the committee members will more than compensate for whatever melody their voices may lack. It's going to be the biggest, best, and most original May Day yet, if one may judge from the reports.

It should be. Preparations have been under way now for more than three weeks. By the time that the big day, May 27, rolls around, some thirty people will have expended more than a month's work on it. The last week before this gala affair, all people connected with it work almost night and day. They attend classes absently, jotting notes, during the lecture, that have not the remotest connection with European History or higher mathematics. The memos are far more likely to read, "Check on blue crepe paper, call auditorium, pick up tickets."

Indeed, Washington's little ceremony for inaugurating the U. S. President is not to be compared to York's ceremony for the crowning of Miss Ivalee Mizell as May Day Queen. And with all due respect to Mr. Truman, it cannot be denied that even uncrowned, Miss Mizell is prettier than he is.

The May Day workers keep muttering about a real rainbow bridge, and the great storm of '49, but as far as we're concerned, the greatest drawing card will be the stacks of gold coins which will be the chairs for the queen's attendants. With all that gold and a rainbow, there should be a pot of gold somewhere, and someone has to find it. Why not the audience?

There Should be Laws Anyway It's a Feat

by the Roving Reporter

Recently, a student of psychology psychologized and issued this statement, "Most of our troubles exist because we start the day on the wrong foot." Now, I've heard a number of answers to our problems but this sounds the most feasible. As roving reporter I needed an important question and this sounded good enough to start me roving.

Sauntering up to an accomplished senior, I blurted out, "What foot do you place out of bed first, when you get up in the morning?" He looked rather thoughtful and then reciprocated, "What is the right foot with which to start the day?" That's just like the seniors, being cautious not to commit their intelligence now that graduation is nearly here. He should have taken a guess because he has only two feet, I thought.

Next I aroused my courage and started prying into the private lives of the girls. Most of them said they came out of bed with both feet. Right here lies half our trouble. It's expected that each of us have two feet but when we commence the day with both of them at the same time we're going to acquire flat feet and a split personality. One fair damsel said she crawled out of bed on her hands. I suppose it was because she didn't have a leg to stand on.

Leaving the girls, I went to the men of the campus and quizzed them on this important issue. The first five men gave the same answer. They explained that they came out of bed head first.

I felt that this was little better than Gallup pole average so the other night when I had shut off the lights and crawled into bed, I called to my roommate and asked him what foot he used to start the day. "The fifteenth one," was the reply from the dark room. "And what kind of a man are you," I questioned. This was answered by a small squeaky voice, "I'm not a man, I'm a centipede."

We See In The Papers . . .

by Bailey

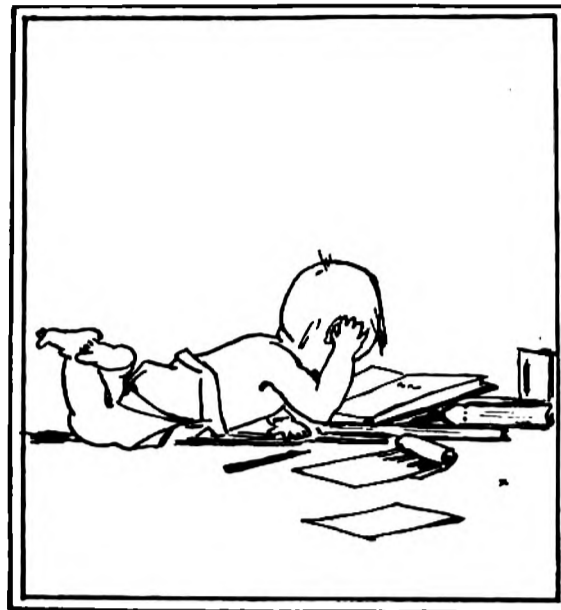

This column is today unblushingly dedicated to poetry found in other papers.

From the W. W. Collegian via the Kearney Antelope:

They find fault with the editor;
The stuff we print is rot;
The paper is as peppy as a cemetary lot.

The rag shows rotten judgment;
The jokes, they say, are stale;
The lower classmen holler;
The upper classmen rail.
But when the paper's issued,
(We say it with a smile)
If someone doesn't get it,
You can hear him for a mile.

From the Wayne Goldenrod via the Kearney Antelope:

Woman is the fateful cause
Of almost all man's trouble.
Just one thing's worse than one female,
That's two, cause then it's double.
They plot and scheme and wrack their brains
To get themselves a male.
They fight to grab the man they want

Just like a bargain sale!

From the Hastings Collegian's "Canned Corn" column:

You can tell a Freshie by his looks of worry and despair.
You can tell a Sophie by his wild and boisterous air.
You can tell a junior by his love and such.
You can tell a senior, but you can't tell him much.

A Modern Fairy Tale

by Jerry the Jerk

Once upon a time (not that time, dear, the other one) there were two red-blooded American boys. They both went to York College. You see, they were heroes. Just for the record, their names were Joe and Shmoe.

Joe plunged at once into a full round of activities; he went out for every sport in the record, joined every organization known to the campus, and took Zoo class so as to have something to do in his spare time. Joe was heart-broken when the YWCA and WAA regrettably informed him that it was no dice, he couldn't belong. Joe gave his all to sports until he was worn to a frazzle. It was all he could do to make those touch-downs, much less get to practices.

Shmoe, on the other hand, got around to joining a literary society just so that he could get the halls without ceasing to gaze deep into the eyes of his many one-and-only's. In fact, if their eyes had been limpid pools, he would have drowned. Having neither the courage, strength, nor mental ability to cope with the Con girls, Shmoe stuck to chasing town girls.

When Joe finally graduated, they took him on a stretcher to receive his sheepskin. Worn out by four years as a wheel, he departed immediately for a rest-cure. His wife stayed on to finish school.

Shmoe? Oh, he quit college after his sophomore year and got a $50-a-week job as a tree surgeon's assistant. He's still a bachelor, by the way.

The End—and high time.

CHAPEL NOTES

Dr. D. E. Weidler, Head, Department of Education, addressed chapel on the topic, "The Chosen Race." Dr. Weidler began by reminding us that each of us has the opportunity to become a member of the chosen race of God.

There are three important things that help us build a life worthy of becoming the followers of Christ. First, we need to use good material in building our lives. Second, the skill or workmanship we use in forming our material is important. Third, we must combine this material and workmanship to accomplish an acceptable purpose of God. Dr. Weidler concluded, "It's our privilege to be united in the church of God, but one of the weaknesses of the church is that we are not obviously different from things of the world."

PALS and Zetas out of his hair. In football he made a priceless (worthless, that is) blocker; he simply lay down and let the opposing team fall over him. The Y-Club was eager to have him belong. They needed someone to practice paddling on. However, they only got him in by awarding him a letter in tiddly-winks. It is reported that Shmoe invented the from-the-waist-up push-ups.

Continuing to be his eager-beaver self, Joe was invariably the star pupil. In fact, he got a crick in his neck from nodding approval to professors' words of wisdom. He developed a sore throat from laughing at professors' jokes. About all Shmoe could manage in class was a lousy snore.

With boundless energy, Joe led the rush for coffee at chapel time. Shmoe solved the problem by staying in bed until noon.

Golfers Show Promise

Record of Three Wins and Two Losses Point To Possible Contention For Conference Honors.

As the Panther netmen and tracksters have been chalking up their records of wins and losses for Y. C., the linksmen have been quietly shooting the little ball into the cup and building an impressive record of three wins and two losses.

The golfers of York have downed the Doane College Tigers and the Midland Warriors, taking the measure of the latter twice. In the meantime, they have been nosed from victory once by Kearney and once by Hastings.

They opened their season of play on their home course at the York Country Club by downing the Doane team 7-5. Their next encounter saw the Hastings Broncos emerge by the scantest of margins on top of a 6 1/2-5 1/2. Next followed the defeat of Midland by a similar score of 6 1/2-5 1/2 before the Panthers succumbed to the onslaught of the Kearney Antelopes by a 7-5 count. Last week the grasscutters journeyed to Fremont to take the measure of Midland on the Warriors' home course by an 8 1/2-3 1/2 tally.

Today the Panthers are scheduled to face a new conference opponent on the home course as they play host to the Wesleyan Plainsmen. The Panthers last season took the measure of the Wesleyan crew in conference play and they should be able to add another laurel to their crown.

In the five meets to date, Dick Bason, number one man of the team, has copped 11 1/2 of a possible 15 points. Following close behind, Aully Holst and Bob DeBoer have both managed to secure 10 of a possible 15 points. The fourth member of the squad, Malcolm Brown, has tallied only three points. However, in the light of first year conference play this record is not as bad as it might seem.

With the conference match scheduled for May 20 and 21, all eyes will focus on the men of the "Green-up" club as they make their bids for conference honors, and, possibly, a repeat championship.

Doane to be Host to NCC Meet May 20-21

On May 20 and 21, the Doane Tigers will hold forth outstretched claws to welcome the other schools of the conference for the annual NCC track and field, tennis, and golf meets.

The Conference meet is being run off in two days this year in order to permit the top performance of all athletes, especially those who double in more than one event. The present plans are for the Friday schedule to be filled primarily with the running of preliminary and qualifying events with the finals being run on Saturday. This will enable the better spacing of events in which athletes usually double.

The Conference tennis match will be played with the singles events being played completely through to a championship on Friday and the doubles on Saturday.

As Doane does not have access to a golf course of satisfactory nature, the golfers will probably play their 18 holes on a Lincoln course.

Net Men Gain Revenge

Erfourth and Vorce Pace Panther Victory With 1 1/2 Victories Each.

The York College netmen avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of Midland Warriors as they invaded Warrior territory to battle sun, wind, and Midland netmen into a narrow 4-3 deficit.

Three Y. C. Men To Be Honored

At a banquet to be held Friday night, May 20, the Co-op Club of York will present York College with a plaque honoring the outstanding athletics of football, basketball, and track.

The plaque is set up for a ten-year period and each of the nine remaining years three names will be added. The athletes are to be chosen by their teammates in each sport and judging should be based on their ability in the sport, their value to the team, ability to get along with coach and teammates, and teamwork. These men are to be chosen without respect to class or letterman ratings.

The initiation of this program is a move to show athletes that the York business men are not only behind the team, but that they are also extremely interested in the development of sportsmanship and other valuable characteristics in the individual athletes.

Don Erfourth and Fred Vorce paced the way for the Yorksters as they copped their singles matches and then combined to complete the rout of their opponents by downing them in doubles. Highlighting the day's activities was Erfourth's victory over Rump of Midland. On the York courts Rump defeated Erfourth and was ready to repeat when Erfourth battled through 40 games to emerge victorious with a count of 6-8, 7-5, 8-6.

Jack Mathis, playing in number five spot since returning from the chorus trip, took the measure of Yankasammy, a Jamaican boy, to complete the roster of victory. In other matches, of the day, Noll was defeated by Campbell and Saratt downed Bean.

Today the Panthers should face a breather before going into the conference next week as they square off against the Wesleyan Plainsmen on their home courts. The Plainsmen, although they did not meet the Panthers in regular play last season, were beaten by proxy in the conference doubles contest as Erfourth and Vorce eliminated their doubles team in the first round of play.

The final results:
 Erfourth (Y) beat Rump (M) 6-8, 7-5, 8-6.
 Vorce (Y) beat Chaney (M) 6-4, 6-3.
 Campbell (M) beat Noll (Y) 6-1, 6-3.
 Saratt (M) beat Bean (Y) 6-3, 6-2.
 Mathis (Y) beat Yankasammy (M) 6-3, 1-6, 7-5.
 Erfourth, Vorce (Y) beat Rump, Chaney (M) 6-0, 3-6, 6-1.
 Campbell, Saratt (M) beat Bean, Mathis (Y) 6-4, 6-4.

Hi-lair-ities By the Sports Editor

Another year is fast drawing to a close and in retrospect the year has not been one of extreme fortune, either good or bad. We of the Sandburr Sports Staff have enjoyed the opportunity of bringing to you, the students, and to the many ex's and futures who read our paper, the rising and falling athletic fortunes of the Panthers. This issue marks the close of a year and a half of service in this capacity for your sports editor as he is being "kicked upstairs."

Our policy has been to give the material of greatest appeal in the most interesting manner. We trust that we have been, in a measure, successful in keeping to our policy. The coverage of sports is, we realize, of top interest to many alumni and to the student body, and as a farewell gesture we would like to highlight the year's activities.

The Panthers of the gridiron enjoyed a not-too-successful season. However, they managed to win the homecoming game for the faithful few or old grads that were present.

In basketball, the sons of the maples early took top honors as they emerged on top of the heap in the Y. C. I. B. Tournament. Harvey Holbrook, sparkling center of the Panther attack, took fifth place scoring honors in competition that resulted in a new conference scoring record.

The tennis and golf teams are pointing to repeat performances of championship play in conference play and the question mark of the day remains hidden behind grey warm-ups on the track.

HAVE YOU HEARD?

The entrance of the York College track team in the Doane College Relays resulted in the emergence of Dob Newton as number two shot-put man of the day. Newton pushed the shot past the 41 foot mark only to have Irv Martens of Doane surpass the 43 foot taper. In the relay events of the afternoon and evening, York drew a blank as they failed to tally in any events. Paul Kemp, Panther hurdler was running in third position in the hurdle race when he fell on the next to the last hurdle.

The townspeople of York were assailed "an masse" a couple of weeks ago when about 80 motorcycles and riders took over the town. The occasion was a series of racing events held on a farm north of York. The feature event of the day was a running of an event called the "European Trials." This event was a race of skill and not speed. It involves the surmounting of several difficult obstacles and scoring is for the "cleanness" of the ride. One point is deducted from the score every time one foot is touched to the ground, two points are forfeited if the weight of the rider is thrown to one foot, three points are deducted if both feet are used simultaneously, and five points are deducted if the motor is brought to a complete stop. About twenty of the eighty visitors attempted to win the trials, but it remained for senior Glen Richards of York, to cop the day's top prize.

Dr. Savery Proves To Be The Y. C. Efficiency Expert

He is about the most efficient person around the campus, and that is fortunate, because he is definitely one of the busiest. He mails approximately 400 letters per week. He usually makes at least one trip to Lincoln a week, and while there, he discharges a dozen missions. He is liaison man between the college and the contractors in Lincoln who are working on the new Middlebrook Hall. In addition to this work and the purchasing of supplies for the college, he is given innumerable errands by the campus organizations and individuals.

While in York, his duties include the supervision of many projects. He has worked with the athletic department in the building of the tennis courts and the bleachers for them. He directed the renovation of the old prop room. It is now used for the storing of band instruments. To care for the new props, cupboards have been constructed on third floor. A new filing system is also being worked out for the benefit of his office.

Dr. Savery is in charge of the promotional material which goes out from the college. Many stories have been sent to the hometown newspapers this year of students who have been outstanding in some activity. He is a human storehouse for information which might be of use to someone. Sample: the college spends $1000 per year on postage alone. He knows where almost any kind of item may be purchased.

His only training in this type of work took place in England before he entered the ministry. He was a business man. He has been very successful in clearing from debt the churches with which he has been connected.

Other duties: He keeps salesmen from seeing the President, oversees the redecoration of YW and WAA rooms, and is financial advisor to the students.

He is evidently so efficient that no situation catches him unprepared. Which accounts, perhaps, for his vow that he has never has an unusual experience in his job.

Dr. Savery

last day of May, was the honored guest at a shower given by Mrs. O. J. Yates.

Wanda Miller and Harriet Thomas will be the honored guests at a shower-breakfast next Sunday, at the home of Barbara Blauch. The senior girls and Miss Shipley will comprise the guest list.

Campus is Empty of Seniors Wed.

"Well, they did it," was the calm remark of one of the underclassmen Wednesday when the campus was suddenly emptied of all members of the senior class. Senior skip day this year included seventeen hours of riding, picnicking, shows, and in general absorbing interesting sights in Omaha and Lincoln. According to some members of the class, senior skip day this year is no exception to the rule of "fun for all."

Showers Honor Y. C. Brides To Be

The proverbial April showers have appeared in profusion on the Y. C. campus, one month late, as brides-to-be are honored.

Hope Howland, an August bride, was honored at a Sunday breakfast. Ruth Weston, senior, York, and Mrs. Counter were co-hostesses to twenty-four guests. Alarm clocks rang regularly to disclose the hiding-place of the gifts, each of which was labeled with an appropriate poem to the honoree.

Members of the sophomore class observed Arbor Day when, in a special chapel program, they presented the college with two sturdy evergreens, which will decorate the southern entrance of Middlebrook Hall.

The chapel program included a report on the significance of Arbor Day, by Doyle Gustafson; a talk on Arbor Day as observed by York College, by Prof. Zelda Wakelin, class sponsor; and a solo "Trees," sung by Mrs. Glenna Bott.

Maude Ruth Polson, as class president, presented the trees to the college. President W. E. Bachman accepted the gift on behalf of the college.

A slight break in tradition was made when the sophomores gave not one, but two trees, and when the trees were planted previous to the presentation ceremony.

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet will be held in the church parlors May 19. The Brotherhood will serve the meal.

Senior Women Feature In Pantomime Program

"We're going to share with you a game that we like," said one of the senior women in introducing the Y. W. C. A. chapel program recently which, as is traditional, was prepared and presented by those soon-to-graduate members. The women then demonstrated the art of portraying by pantomime animals, trees and inanimate objects.

The program was held informally, giving the audience a chance to guess at the objects being visualized and to share in the banter. Several short poems appropriate to the occasion were read by Wanda Miller, Russell, Kans. Norma Jean Anderson, York, gave a humorous reading and the senior trio sang "She May Have Seen Better Days." The program ended with the entire group of women joining in the song.

Devotions were led by Ruth Weston, York, who was assisted by Anna Kamm, Platte Center.
