

Dr. Guy T. Buswell, '13, to Be Commencement Speaker

Prof. of Educational Psychology of Chicago University Is Nationally Known

Dr. Guy T. Buswell, '13, Professor of Educational Psychology at the University of Chicago, has been secured as Commencement speaker, according to President D. E. Weidler, who made the statement recently.

Dr. Buswell is a nationally known educator, and it is predicted that his address and his presence at commencement festivities will draw a large crowd of alumni and townspeople. One of Dr. Buswell's special interests is the testing and measuring of reading speed and a system of increasing that speed by means of exercising and training optical muscles. Life Magazine of January 14 credits Dr. Buswell with having applied his methods in behalf of the new assistant secretary of state, William Benton, who could not be content with mere normal reading speed.

As an undergraduate, Dr. Buswell, son of a United Brethren minister, lived near the campus, and was active in college and church activities. Later, he was a member of the York College faculty for a while before taking up his present work. As an alumnus, he has been especially interested in the library to which he has made numerous substantial gifts. When the college library was moved to its present location in the old gymnasium, Dr. Buswell's money and advice assumed an important role in reconverting, re-decorating, and refurbishing the building, which has since been called, "Alumni Library."

Sadie Hawkins Party Closes Leap Week-End On March 1

The Sadie Hawkins Leap Week-End was concluded on March 1 with a party held in the gymnasium. The gym was decorated with painted cardboard characters from the "Lil Abner" comic-strip where the "Sadie Hawkins" custom originated.

When the men and their escorts arrived at the gymnasium, they were given one of nine different small characters and then all were asked to form groups by matching the little figures with the similar large ones hung at intervals around the gymnasium. The figures included Mummy Yokum, Pappy, 'Lil Abner, Daisy Mae, Salome, Moonbeam, Hairless Joe, Lonesome Polecat, and Goose-grease Gus. At each of these places a game was played for five minutes, the groups rotating until they had participated in every game. Points were earned in these activities and the winning team members were given a prize.

The entertainment and decoration committee was made up of Doris Jean Canon, Barbara Jean Blauch, and Norma Jean Anderson, freshmen, York; Wanda Miller, freshman, Hoisington, Kansas; Harriet Thomas, freshman, Topeka, Kansas; and Eva Evenson, freshman, Goodell, Iowa.

A prize was given to Howard Harris, junior of York, for the cleverest corsage exhibited at the party. The men were lined up while the judges, Miss Irene Shipley of the Expression department, Miss Zelda Wakelin, Romance Languages, and Miss Jean Mattingly, Hulitt Hall hostess, examined the corsages. Honorable mentioned was granted Denny Auchard, sophomore, Woodston, Kansas, for the cleverest corsage, which was made by Mary Anderson, sophomore, Arlington, Colorado, and to Carl Riggs, sophomore, Ames, Iowa, for the most beautiful corsage. It was produced by Norma Ruth Ehler, freshman, Johnstown, Colorado. The grand prize went to Howard Harris, whose wife, Doris Harris, was

Piracy Reigns At Annual Junior-Senior Party

Piracy reigned under the "Jolly Roger" flag in the Y. C. Pirates' Den last Thursday evening, March 8, when the senior class played host to the juniors. The annual party was held in the dining hall of Hulitt Hall.

The invitations were treasure maps, and the refreshments consisted of ice cream "pilot wheels" and "treasure chest" cakes. Decorations, with portholes for windows, were in a nautical theme.

A novel event of the evening was an award to the best "shop-lifter" of the evening. Larry Smith, senior, Giltner, won the prize and was declared the best pirate.

Roberta Allen, senior, Berthoud, Colo., posing as Captain Kidd, was Mistress of Ceremonies. Prof. and Mrs. J. W. Karraker, and Coach and Mrs. R. E. Tonkin, senior and junior class sponsors respectively, were faculty guests.

Prof. W. J. Karraker Stresses Knowledge, Education, Morality

"The need for knowledge, education, and morality in the field of human relations is vitally important for the progress of future generations, declared Prof. W. Jacob Karraker dean of men and Y. M. C. A. sponsor, at a recent Y. M. C. A. meeting.

To make clear his concept, Prof. Karraker defined the four important words of the statement. Knowledge is a clear perception of facts, education is systematic training, morality is the intelligent habits of action in society, and human relations is getting along with one another.

"The opportunity for advancement stands primarily in the field of human relations," said Prof. Karraker. "We must teach people to work as a group, in other words, work for the good of everyone."

Prof. Karraker took examples from COLLIERS and TIME mag-

The York College Conservatory of Music presented Mrs. Dollie Schwindt, mezzo-soprano, Albuquerque, New Mexico, pupil of Dean Charles Amadon, in a voice recital Friday evening, March 8 at the college church. She was assisted by Lois Anderson, junior, Billings, Montana, pupil of Miss Eda L. Rankin, who played "Prelude in G Minor" by Sergi Rachmaninoff and "When Moonlight Falls" by Granville English. Eunice Stauffer, senior, Meadow Grove, accompanied.

Savings of Former Student Donated To Greater Y.C. Fund

A brown leather bag of small coins was brought to President D. E. Weidler's office last week and added to the Greater York College Campaign funds. The coins had been saved by Miss Nellie Rabuck, ex-'46 of Dawson, Iowa, who passed away in February of this year, and were intended to be applied on a pledge she had made to the college, according to President Weidler.

In relating the story, the president said, "The campaign fund has received much larger gifts, but none that we appreciate more than the savings of this loyal and devoted former student who had decided to lay aside a regular portion of her earnings for Christian education."

The bag, which contained about fifteen dollars, was brought to York by Miss Rabuck's father, the Rev. Earl Rabuck, ex-'27, who was in the city to attend the Town and Country Church Commission.

IRENE FALK RECEIVES MARY MUTCH CAIN AWARD

Irene Falk

Irene Falk of Stromsburg is the recipient of the Mary Mutch Cain Award this year. Miss Falk has been very active on the campus being a member of PALS, Y. W. C. A., Life Work Recruits, Histrionic Club, and a member of the Marathon Staff.

Mrs. Cain was a graduate of Leander Clark College, in Toledo, Iowa, and a missionary in Africa. She was killed during an uprising of African natives. Her friends have erected this living memorial of a money gift to be given each year to the senior girl nominated by the faculty women and elected by the entire faculty as the one who most nearly represents the character of Mrs. Cain.

One-Act Mystery To Be Presented At Chapel Friday

"The Case of the Weird Sisters", a mystery in one act by Wall Spence, will be presented in chapel tomorrow under the direction of Irene Shipley, head of expression department.

When Marion Curtis, portrayed by Hope Howland, sophomore, Great Falls, Mont., inquired about the furnished room for rent in the home of three Pidgeon sisters, Mattie, Bessie, and Charlotte, enacted by Elsie Walker, freshman, Santa Cruz, New Mex.; Betty Jean Schoonover, sophomore, Des Moines, Ia.; and Roberta Allen, senior, Berthoud, Colo., it did not take her long to realize she had stumbled upon something very weird and mysterious. In the first place, the two sisters Mattie and Bessie gave sure signs of being definitely "teched" and in the course of a fantastic tea party they let fall strange bits of their personal history. As Marion listened breathlessly to these bits, they began to shape themselves into a strange, mysterious pattern, with undertones of something grim and sinister. Another member of the household was a frightened young girl named Enid (Jean Rasp, sophomore, Shelby) who whispered to Marion of some evil and warned her not to rent the room. Marion stayed on. In the still of the night a blood-curdling scream brought Marion rushing from her room and the spectacle she witnessed exposed in a flash

Using as his theme, "Needed: Men and Women of Character," the Rev. John Shell, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, addressed twenty-one seniors and their friends at the seniors' formal recognition at the First United Brethren church this morning. The annual Mary Mutch Cain award was presented to Irene Falk of Stromsburg.

This is the thirty-fifth graduating class of York College to be publicly recognized. The first recognition ceremony honored the class of 1911 of which Dr. W. C. Noll, professor of biological sciences, was a member. The late Miss Vera Blinn sponsored that class.

The senior class was presented by Prof. W. J. Karraker, class sponsor, and was recognized by Pres. D. E. Weidler.

Margaret Webb, DuBois, president of the junior class, recognized the seniors in behalf of the juniors. Roberta Allen, senior, Berthoud, Colo., gave the senior response.

In his address, the Rev. Mr. Shell stated that qualified leaders are urgently needed in political life, in business life, and in church life. Such leaders are too few, according to the speaker, because of the scarcity of honesty and straight forwardness in public life. "Qualified leadership can be most successfully attained through Christianity, the bulder of all that is best," declared Mr. Shell.

Eugene Langseth, freshman, Albuquerque, N. Mex., gave a cello solo, "Evening Star" by Wagner. The senior trio, consisting of Irene Falk, Stromsburg; Pattie Weidler, York; and Dollie Anderson Schwindt, sang "A Heart That's Free" by Robyn. The trio was accompanied by Marjorie Thornton, junior, Billings, Mont.

The seniors who were recognized and the degrees for which they are candidates are: Roberta Berglin Allen, A. B., Berthoud, Colo.; Mary Kathryn Armstrong, A. B., Lincoln; Ruth Wren Auchard, A. B., Woodston, Kans.; Cassye Baugh, A. B., York; Imogene Bland, A. B., Shelby; Martha Cox, B. S., Espanola, N. Mex.; Jewell Daniel, A. B., Lockport, N. Y.; Charlene Hurley Eberhart, A. B., Denver, Colo.; Irene Falk, A. B., Stromsburg; Mary Harris, A. B., Nelson; Regina Heatherington, A. B., Lawrence, Kans.; Esther Megill, B. S., Elmhurst, Ill.; Harvey Peters, A. B., York; Dollie Anderson Schwindt, A. B., York; Wayne Schwindt, A. B., York; Lawrence Smith, A. B., Giltner; Eunice Stauffer, A. B., Meadow Grove; Betty Mae Taylor, A. B., York; Robert Vance, A. B., Republic, Kans.; Howard Walker, B. S., Chicago, Ill.; and Pattie Weidler, A. B., York.

How About It?

Do you do it because you have to or because you want to—or don't you do it? Study, I mean. Practically all students attend college with some purpose in mind. And most of them know how to study properly if they so desire. But they do not all maintain the same attitude toward their work.

Some students have several or more of the characteristics of the "I'll get by" group. What's an assignment to them? If they can get it without too much effort, well and good. If not, why worry? They can pick it up in class anyway. If they happen to put in two consecutive hours of study one night they tell all of their friends about it for a week. They seem to expect to fail most tests, and are always pleasantly surprised when they receive a fair grade. They enjoy telling others how little studying they have done on the lesson, then prove it by contributing nothing to the class discussion. One of their favorite pastimes is wishing for the end of the semester. They are ready to stop before they start. They have a terrible time with college work because the high school they attended didn't offer a course in Applied Croquet Techniques—or history or English or something else. College work is a "social pill", candy-coated with campus activities, that must be swallowed as an eligibility requirement for a job.

You've already guessed the character of the second group. They may not like to study any better than the other students, but they regard the assignments as important and useful. They aren't concerned with "getting by" for the present; they've interested in "getting ready" for the future. The semester end is a starting point for them. Background deficiencies are a spur, not a handicap to their efforts.

It's an old saying, but still true: the more we put into a thing, the more we get out of it. That principle should be applied to our college life. We may apparently "put something over" on our professors for four years, only to realize later that we "put something over" on ourselves for life.

G. I. Impressions

"I gained my impressions of people overseas from my experiences with them when my ship docked", said Denny Auchard, sophomore, Woodston, Kansas, formerly of the merchant marines. He spent some time in Australia, the Philippines, and Iran.

"The Australians aren't divided into classes like other British countries; they are more like us. As a whole they are friendly and very clean especially in the southern part. A great many of the Australian industries are in American names. Although the people speak the English language, it takes about a day to understand them. Their English sounds almost like a foreign language at first."

Auchard continued to say that everything had been blown to pieces in the Philippines when he was there. The people were living just anywhere, even in bombed buildings with no roofs.

"The Filipinos are pretty clever at making trades with a visitor and getting the better deal", Auchard remarked. "As a people they seem to be well treated by America and seem to have no special gripes."

His general impression of Persia was that of unsanitation and filth. Although it was very hot, the people dressed in several suits each one of which was in shreds and dirty. There was a class system but all that one could see was the lower class. The economic system was one of extremes. The people were either very rich or poverty stricken.

"The children threw rocks at us if we didn't give them money", he concluded.

Denny Auchard returned to York college last fall and has been active in various activities on the campus since.

"After the Germans finally accepted the fact that we were in control they treated us better than the other countries, where the people didn't seem to appreciate us," said Lora Holbrook, junior, Orchard, who spent 15 months overseas in England, France, Belgium, Holland, and Germany.

The standard of living was much lower in Europe than here, but the educational standards weren't very bad. One fact that seemed to impress so many was how well known our language was in foreign countries.

"The black market was participated in by nearly every one in Europe, army personnel as well as civilians," Holbrook continued. "A carton of cigarettes was worth $22 that way."

"British people as a whole are cold and seem to have been pretty hard hit."

"We sailed on a Liberty ship from Antwerp on the third of January. The second day out we ran into a storm and from there on we were in one right after another until the ship cracked in the after-deck. A coast guard cutter answered our radio for help and escorted us to Newfoundland. After repairs, we continued to New York," he said.

"The Statue of Liberty looks pretty good after you haven't seen her for a long time", he concluded.

After 11 months as a German prisoner of war, Joe Deardorff, sophomore, York, expressed the opinion that the people in southern Germany weren't so bad. As a rule they were friendly but after the bombings their attitudes changed.

As a member of the paratroopers, Deardorff jumped in the Normandy invasion. Because they were dropped 12 miles off, his group had to work its way back to the company. Five days after the invasion, he was captured.

He spent his time in a work camp. It was better to be there," he said, "because when we worked, the time passed faster."

"We worked on a water pipe line. We got coffee for breakfast, soup for lunch, and bread with a little meat for supper. Christmas day in '44 we got boiled potatoes and gravy instead of the soup. We also got one Red Cross package apiece instead of having to share it among several men."

When asked about his contact with the outside world, Deardorff said, "My mother wrote letters every Sunday and Wednesday; yet I got only two in the entire time that I was there. The two packages that were sent to me I have received since I returned. We were supposed to be allowed to write two letters and four cards each month but it didn't always work out that way."

He got information about international affairs from some Frenchmen in the town who had access to outside information by radio. His group knew about President Roosevelt's death the following day.

"Just before evacuation we were moved to Czechoslovakia

Eunice Stauffer

"I am a person who likes people," stated Eunice Stauffer when she was interviewed. Miss Stauffer comes to York College from Meadow Grove.

Her hobby, and minor at college, is music. Besides being an accomplished pianist, Eunice is a singer and a whistler. She is the accompanist for the York College chorus.

Eunice is majoring in sociology. After graduation from college her tentative plans are to teach in a high school.

Of all the organizations on the campus, Eunice has been most active in Y. W. C. A. She was president of the organization, her term ending this month. She was also elected May Queen by that society last year.

Eunice is also active in Zetas, Life Work Recruits, of which she was president for a semester last year, W. A. A., Press Guild, and is a member of the Sandburr staff. She is subscription manager of the Marathon.

AD LIBS FROM THE LIBRARY

What girl doesn't love to talk about, read about, and try on clothes? And some men are brave enough to profess an interest in the subject. We have in our library, some books on just that,—clothes, as worn by our ancestors and their ancestors.

For purely practical purposes, we have "A Book of Dramatic Costume", by Dabney and Wise, and "Period Patterns", by Edson and Barton.

"The Folk Costume Book", by Frances Haire, deals with costumes of different countries, with suggestions for their reproduction.

There are two other books, however, that are beautiful combinations of the practical and the entertaining.

The first of these is "Historic Costume for the Stage" by Lucy Barton. It describes and illustrates the styles from the time of the ancient Egyptians to the beginning of the present century. The amazing thing is that some form of almost every costume period is evident in today's fashions. That old Greek draped affair looks like an exclusive Valentino model, and that seventeenth century headgear would double for the latest Dache chapeau.

"English Costume, Painted and Described," by D. C. Calthrop, is a cleverly written, charmingly illustrated book, and not the least of its fascinations is its national origin. The book is alive and vivid, for the author has, in his own words, "endeavored to show, in addition to the body of the clothes, some little of their soul." You'll like the carefully inserted, full page watercolors by way of illustration, and the black and white drawings with a character all their own.

"Rubber's Goodyear" The Story of a Man's Perseverance", by Adolph Regli, is an appealing tribute to a man whose patient toil is often overshadowed by more spectacular advances, but whose worth to the world is almost incomputable. If it hadn't been for his discovery the rubber

Panthers Defeated By Wesleyan Team

Playing their last game of the season, the York College Panthers were defeated 48-34 by Nebraska Wesleyan university in a battle for third place in the NCAC conference. The game was played at Lincoln on the narrow Wesleyan court, March 5, with about 100 Panther fans witnessing the game.

The Panthers took an early lead and were out in front the first 12 minutes of the game. The Plainsmen started hitting their long shots and couldn't be stopped as they ran the score up to 22-15 at the half time.

The second half proved no better for the Panthers than the first as they were unable to get their fast break to work. Wesleyan continued to pound the hoop and built up a 14 point margin before the game ended.

Miller and Paap scored 14 points each for the Plainsmen to share scoring honors for the evening. Auchard, who had cooled off considerably since the Hastings game, scored 10 points for the Panthers, eight of them on free throws.

The game was a rough and ragged affair with 53 fouls called. Wesleyan lost three men on fouls and had two technicals called against them.

York Five Beats NCAC Champions 57-49

York Victory Was A Big Up-Set In The State And Not Expected By Sports Fans

The York College Panthers saddled the Hastings College Broncos, NCAC champions, and rode them to a 57-49 victory in a thrilling game played at the city auditorium on Friday, March 1, before six hundred cheering fans. It was the last home game of the Panthers.

The game started out fast with both teams scoring within the first few minutes. First one team would forge ahead and then the other. As a result, the score was tied five times in the first 10 minutes of play.

With the score 13-13, McIllice and Penning began to hit for the Broncos to break the tie. The Panthers fought desperately, but were unable to gain the lead. The half ended with Hastings leading 27-19.

The second half the Panthers exploded like a barrel of dynamite and within two minutes had climbed to within a point of the Broncos. After five more minutes of play, the Panthers gained the lead and held it the remainder of the game.

The Panthers played a brilliant game with Denny Auchard hitting the hoop for 25 points. Holbrook dropped in 15 points and Robson 10 more. McIllice scored 19 points for the Broncos.

Auchard and Robson gave the Broncos plenty of trouble on several occasions as the speedy forwards would steal the ball from their hands and dribble down the floor for set-ups. Holbrook, Hannon, and Shaneyfelt played a great defensive game stopping many a fast break.

The victory over the NCAC champions was a big up-set in the state and was not expected by sports authorities. It was a thrilling game for the fathers of the Panthers' first team who were guests of honor, sitting with their sons on the players' bench. The dads offered the half-time entertainment with a free-throw contest.

In a preliminary game the York Cubs defeated the Hastings B team 41-38.

Spring Football Practice Started

Football practice got underway last Monday as about thirty men checked out equipment and reported to Coach R. E. Tonkin for the first day of the three weeks period of spring football.

Nine of the men who reported are YC football lettermen. Five of them, Auchard, Rhoades, Rojahn, Robson, and Walker, lettered last fall in six-man football. The other four, Feemster, Haberman, Dick, and DeBoer, played 11-man football and lettered in 1942.

Coach Tonkin plans to use most of the three weeks for football fundamentals. The first part of the week was used primarily for tackling and blocking practice. The feature event of the three weeks period will be the last day when two teams will tangle in a game.

With more former football lettermen expected back from the service by next fall, Coach Tonkin expects to have plenty of material from which to pick a team. With the lettermen who are already in college and with those who are expected next fall, there should be plenty of competition.

AD LIBS FROM THE LIBRARY

You should read Rackham Holt's account of a great man, "George Washington Carver." Here you'll find a paradox, for the work of this man helped the people by whom he was persecuted. You might be surprised to know that Mr. Carver was a talented artist, as well as scientist.

Who hasn't heard of the fabulous Carnegie? Perhaps you owe a phase of your early education to his library funds. His autobiography proves the worth, if you need proof, of the honest, diligent immigrant who seeks new life in America. It presents for your approval, a picture of this ambitious Irishman with a Midas touch.

"Christians are the salt of the earth. Without this salt the world has lost its savour," said the Rev. M. B. Canon, '23, Director of Public Relations, in chapel recently.

The Rev. Mr. Canon compared the life of a Christian to a grain of salt. The only way a grain of salt can be useful is for it to dissolve itself to fulfill its task. Likewise, the only way a life can be saved is that it be used. Christianity has only the meaning that we give to it in our daily lives.

address given by Bishop V. O. Weidler of Kansas City, Mo., at a recent formal chapel.

"There is a conflict in the world between right and wrong which manifests itself in crises," he stated. Down through the ages, this conflict has resulted in wars. In the Civil war the choice was between freedom for all and slavery.

To explain the unity that should exist among all peoples today, Bishop Weidler used the example of the "Fuzzie-Wuzzie angels" of the south sea islands. To the soldiers, whose lives they saved, there was no difference of color or language. Through kindness they achieved brotherhood.
