

Seniors Begin Themes; Topics Prove Interesting

There is going to be some mighty interesting reading floating around Y. C. before long. The seniors have started up that long journey called, "The Journey of Senior Themes."

Yes, we go to hear senior recitals but the poor senior who works into the wee morning hours on his masterpiece, namely the "Senior Theme," is never given much attention. The only person who pays any attention to his work is his professor.

This year the seniors are turning out some truly interesting pieces of work. A few of these are: "The Church Under Communistic China," by Harold French, Wichita, Kansas; "Robert Frost," by Paul Woelfle, Loveland, Colorado; "Republic of Modern Israel," by Bob Miller, Cheyenne, Wyoming; "Color in the Short Story," by Mabel Brandenburg, Russell Kansas; and "Dickens' Social Theories," by Justina Peters, Henderson, Nebraska.

Delta Lambda Mu Chapel Honors Y.C. Scholars; York Principal Addresses Students

Given Delta Lambda Mu Award as ranking junior.

Delta Lambda Mu Award Given to High Ranking Junior

In the Delta Lambda Mu Honor Convocation held Monday, December 10, Principal Lewis Fowles of the York High School spoke to the students, faculty and the 43 honorees.

Carol Denton, senior, York, received the Delta Lambda Mu scholarship given each year to the highest ranking junior of the previous year. This award given by Y. C.'s honor society is a $25 scholarship that is presented on scholastic merit alone. Miss Denton has a 90.09 average with 112 hours credit to date. It should be mentioned here that although Harold French has a 90.88 average, since he had been at Y. C. only one year he will be ineligible to receive this award according to the rules of the Delta Lambda Mu.

Intramural League Established by YM

This year's intramural basketball league is to be under the sponsorship of the Y. M. C. A. It was decided by the group that games should be played on Thursday nights. Two games shall be played each time with game time being 7:00 and 8:15 p. m.

A team shall consist of not less than eight men. If a team cannot field at least six men on a scheduled game night, that team must forfeit the game. If any team forfeits more than one game it shall be disqualified from further competition.

A fee of 75 cents per game shall be paid by each team before game time. At least three games in advance is proposed. Officials shall be paid one dollar per night and time keeper and scorer 50 cents per night.

If at any time during the season a player wishes to change teams he must sit out a game for each time he changes. No basketball letterman will be eligible for competition.

5 Team League Formed

So far Hulitt Hall, Kroyville, Paines, Thompson and Feemsters, and Cotners and Diehls, are members of the five team league. A captain of each team should have submitted a list of not less than 8 men by last Wednesday, December 5.

The public is invited to all games. Coach Haight will also be watching this group for possible additions to Varsity competition.

Nativity Scheduled For Auditorium Stage, Dec. 16;

Christmas Story Leads Pre-holiday Activity on Campus

Leading the Christmas activities at York College this year will be the Nativity to be presented December 16, 8:00 o'clock at the City Auditorium.

The Christmas Story told by Luke and prophesied by Isaiah is an effective combination to be used as the setting and is under the direction of Professor Koontz, head of the music department. Colorful background will be furnished by the choir seated below the stage. The story will be read by Les Hazen, senior, The Dalles, Oregon, and dramatized in three scenes: The Announcement, The Shepherd Scene, and The Manger Scene. Effective lighting and staging managed by Jim Potter, senior, Grover, Colorado, and Les Hazen with elaborate and colorful costuming contribute to the beauty of the Christmas Story.

Composer of 'On the Hill' Depicted by Pathfinder

Whereabouts of Artist Told by Magazine

Several years ago in 1931 there appeared in concert on the York College chapel stage a composer and author whose name was Ruby Carol Rickert. Although totally blind Miss Rickert maintained a repertoire of her own compositions playing and singing them herself. At this concert which she gave for York College students she presented to them a song which she had written and dedicated to York, knowing their lack at that time of a College song and called it, "On the Hill of the Rising Sun". After her solo rendition of this number the student body rose en masse and cheered for several minutes.

Marries Blind Student

However since that time few persons on the campus have known of her whereabouts and her activities. But recently in the national news magazine Pathfinder there appeared in the religion section an article which told the story of the Rev. John Ulrich, a blind minister who has a church in Manhattan and of

Christmas Contest Prospects Dim

Christmas contest flops! This writer is not psychic but in view of the response by students thus far, such a prospect seems probable. Would a jack tournament excite more student participation? What does it take to get York College academicians enthusiastic?

This indifferent attitude is apparent in several aspects of YC activity. It is an established fact that only five per cent of the members of a student body have the capacity to govern and the remaining ninety-five per cent only follow. However, this does not mean that this ninety-five per cent should be unenterprising followers.

If it weren't for a few more expeditious individuals, York College could not operate a paper and such organizations as the YWCA and LWR

These few ambitious students do not have time to achieve perfection in all these fields. Their initiative is exhausted merely keeping the paper and various organizations in existence.

We, as students, are aware, I think, of the fact that YC is derided by many of York's hypercritics. Some of the criticisms are justified, unfortunately. On the other hand, do these captious critics scorn our a-capella choir? this year's football team? No . . . and for obvious reasons.

If we would work to improve all phases of our campus activity as mentor and students collaborate to improve the choir and football team, then would come the enthusiasm, the pride over a school that would be above reproach.

Except Ye Become As Little Children

The Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. Ten years ago this thought was upper most in our minds. Utter contempt for these small people filled our minds but we soon changed this to real fear. To say we were surprised is putting it mildly—we were shocked to a state of near unreality, it simply couldn't be true.

Today most people are convinced we are faced by an even greater menace. Psychologists say the biggest step in solving a problem is recognizing it as such. We have recognized it, now what?

We cannot ignore or go around it so we must do something. As our name the United States of America implies we must have unity. A house divided against itself cannot stand. Therefore we must all approach this problem with the same thought in mind. As has been proven many times a man or group of men cannot rule by force alone. He must have co-operation and co-operate with those under him, hence to conquer this problem, by the method of war seems unlikely.

On the twenty-fifth of this month we celebrate the birthday of One who had the answer to the problems of mankind. He once told a group, "Except ye become as little children ye cannot enter into the Kingdom of heaven." One of the biggest differences between a man and a child is that a child has faith and trust in others.

Too often we hold that an argument has two sides, our side and the wrong side. If we follow this theory nothing short of war can be the result. Jesus said, "Let him who would be greatest be your servant." If you walk so you can wear your neighbor's shoes his feet will never be sore from pinches you gave him. Might does not make right but rather right makes right.

Sunday, December 7 will go down in American history as one of our bloodiest. That Sunday started the worst war man has ever seen. Next Sunday could start the greatest peace man has ever dreamed possible. Each Sunday starts a new week and many times the week is governed by where you are on Sundays. You cannot start a war by going to church but you can stop one.

I Worked for the Bachmans OR Don't Get the Dustcloth, Madam, I Brought A Kleenex!

By Alta Aldrich

The warning bell of the underworld rang Thursday evening at 8:00! I know, because I was there! Betty and I. We dumb-waitresses sprang to attention as the bell sounded again and again letting in 39 people in the next half hour. Bussing ourselves by setting up chairs for the celebrities, we kept our eyes and ears open for any piece of news that would fill up space in the near-empty pages of the Cold-Ground Gazette, or better known to you on the best side of tracks as the SANDBURR.

As the evening progressed we found that these officials act much the same at a housewarming party as the students would. For as they milled around the newly decorated castle of the president of the Underworld, the ladies talked about "what I have in my house . . ." and the men said, "Now that's what I wish I had in my house . . ." I won't mention any titles but the voice teacher at the institution ran up and down the stairs because she "just loves steps." She lives in a hut. As I stood with my ear to the wall listening to the conversations, I heard over a hum of voices Miss Polk, the treasurer of this mighty concern, say, "Now Mark, you count them to see if I have them divided even." I presume they were dividing into teams to play games, however, Mrs. Bachman said after it was over that she was missing 6 teaspoons. Mrs. Edith Regenos, who is the mother of some house, told two students that someone had taken her box of candy. She added however that she didn't lose much since the Coach had eaten most of it!

After the loot of ice cream, cake, nuts, mints, and coffee was divided, the librarian was heard asking a certain Queen if she would like to come over in the morning to talk more about interior decorating. This happened in the underworld. I was there! Betty and I. Mr. Attig was angry with one of the waitresses for not passing him the bowl of nuts. Betty always wanted to change her major field. I saw Mrs. "Mac" in the kitchen sampling the coffee too. That is, after I found out who she was! This happened in the Underworld. I know because I was there!

SENIORITIES The Phrase that Refreshes

John Coover

John Coover, Parsons, Kansas, a ministerial student has contributed to Y. C. campus life in the following organizations: former Zetas, Y. M. C. A., L. W. R., and O. B. N. John is one of our several married students and he and his wife, Hyla, live in one of the campus huts. John sings tenor in The Gospel Team Quartet with Larry Thorson, San Diego, Calif., Norman Allen, Riverdale, Calif., and Bob Miller, Cheyenne, Wyo. Following graduation he and his wife will attend Bonebrake Theological Seminary.

Herb Kamm

This genial member of the senior class is known on the campus for his tenor voice and for his solo work, especially with the touring choir. Herb is a political science major who amazes his friends in class despite the sparsity of red hair which is apparent on his head. Claiming membership in the Pantin' Panthers, Touring Choir and Diehl's intramural team, Herb will be one of the wise men in the Nativity which will be presented soon.

By Bob Herrick

Friendship, peculiar boon of Heaven,
The noble mind's delight and pride,
To men and angels only giv'n,
To all the lower world denied.

—Samuel Johnson.

Here are a couple more items to think about sometime concerning Friendship—

"It is more shameful to distrust a friend than to be deceived by him."—La Rochefoucauld.

and . . .

"Better to be nettle in the side of your friend than his echo."
—Emerson.

These two I throw in for the satisfaction of a purely selfish motive. I have had these two remarks on my desk for some time hoping that I would find a place to work them in this column. I have given up trying and want to throw those pieces of paper away, so here they come:

The first is a selection from a contemporary author—

"If you give to a thief, he cannot steal from you, and he himself is then no longer a thief."

—William Saroyan.

The second is a statement from a contemptuous character commonly known as Bruce Rabuck. He is trying to introduce some new words into the English language

"You can't insult me; I am un-sulterable."

I don't just exactly know why, but it has come to my mind several times in the last week, that I am soon to witness the beginning of a new type of life for one of my friends. As a result, I have been noticing various statements and assertions made by all kinds of people upon the subject of this "type of life"—marriage.

Kipling, who is a favorite of mine, has oft been quoted by my father as having said, in one of his poems, this terse phrase:

" . . . A rag, a bone, a hank of hair,

And the Fool, he calls her his lady fair—

Even as you and I."

I would guess that is from Tomlinson, but I am too lazy to find out for sure.

This epigram may be found in Wm's play "All's Well that ends Well."—I looked this one up.

When I told my friend Harold about the advice given by the writer of the Proverbs, his fear-filled eyes regained some of that happy confidence they once contained. For your benefit, Gentlemen, I pass it on to you.

"It is better to dwell in the wilderness, than with a contentious and an angry woman."

—Proverbs 21:19v.

However, lest you get the wrong idea, I must admit (as we all must in the end) that old man Genesis was absolutely right when he pulled up his chair to his portable Royal and pounded out the following truth:

"It is not good that man should be alone."

—Genesis, 2:18v.

HEARD AROUND

"Are you going to the Bugology Department?" . . . "Dr. Weidler sang a solo in chapel this morning" . . . "How's your Vanity?" —"Fair" . . . "She's not coming back next semester. She's got that 'boyological' urge . . . 'White Christmas' . . . 'Malaguena' . . . 'Justy begging for a man' . . . 'Do the tenors carry that phrase until death?"

Go Fly Your Kite!

By Bill

In the deep, dark, dank recesses of the college library are kept some documents that concern the month of December. Much to my surprise I found that in December was held one of the biggest drinking parties in history. The snobs of Boston got together and from the sound of things threw all the old boys in the bay and drank tea.

Imagine yourself in the bay that morning. If you met another poor fish you couldn't tell if he was green from envy or the party. A brand name came out that day. England was tired of our lip, hence Lipton's Tea. We laugh at the Indians for planting fish with corn but what was our aim when we put tea in with the fish.

The army was handled quite differently in those days. Most all the recruits were taken on a picnic to a place called Valley Forge. They nearly ran out of food but England had us eat our own words for a couple of months so they survived. Of course the gag of lil George throwing the buck across the river comes to mind. Nowadays we throw the bull across the ocean.

They had some great orators in that day. One man got up and denounced marriage, his cry "Give me liberty or give me death." A group of housewives shouted, "United we rule, divided we get alimony." The following fight was given its name by the casualty reports: its name—"Bull Run." I might add that this battle is still going on.

One last important event happened in December. Most of us fly off the handle at one time or another, but a pair of brothers made history by flying off the ground, that proving that flying was not just for the birds. They fly a glorified kite, hence the expression higher than a kite.

Airlines now circle the globe and with Joe putting the squeeze to every one, girdle is probably the right word. Kids haven't changed much through the years though. Then it was considered foolhardy to fly a kite and now we think the same about flying in a car. As some one said, "The only difference between right and wrong is whether I do it." Bye and keep smiling.

For Goodness Sake . . .

"When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; But when I became a man, I put away childish things."

Having just finished that quotation from the Bible can you say as much for yourself ??? Have you become an adult, accepting the responsibilities that belong to a college man or woman?

Or will you excuse yourself saying, "I don't have to since I'm not an adult yet, I'm still in school which exempts me from my adult responsibilities." If this is your attitude, the chances are you will never grow up.

Maybe you are still in the dark about your personality but if you fit any of the following examples then you needn't wonder any longer.

First there is the person who gains the attention of a person across the student union by hitting him in the head with a checker. If that doesn't work he uses a whole box of checkers. This very same person gripes the very next day about the faculty not putting any games in the student union.

Then there is the person who delights in making extremely loud noises when he knows there is a meeting in the next room. Close to this type is the one who is also loud but in a different way. He wants every one for blocks around to know just how good he is.

The know-it-all mustn't be left out in this review. It is a shame he has to go to class since he knows more than the instructor. At least he talks more than the professor and the class combined.

Many more types of individuals fall under the heading of childish but maybe you have the idea now. If you have been man or woman enough to come to college, then for the good of all, PUT AWAY ALL OF YOUR CHILDISH WAYS!

Coach Initiates New Style in Basketball; Season Unpredictable

Dee-uh Buruces' Glasses

By a Thompson Inmate
My friends, I am about to write an essay, in five hundred words, about D. B. Mathews' glasses. Glasses with character. They seem to contain a personality all of their own. A fine subject!

The glasses are of the heavy, plastic rim type, reminiscent of the old horn-rimmed glasses. They are dark colored. Perhaps it is the color from which comes this distinct, individual personality. Most glasses look as if they can be purchased in any five and dime store, merely by trying them on until you find a good fit. But not D. B.'s glasses. As I have said, they exude pure individualism.

When Mathews puts on his glasses you automatically go into a reverie. You go into a Walter-Mitty-like trance, in reverse. Instead of picturing yourself as a hero, you put our friend into the various categories and situations.

First thing I think of when I see him is that he is a scholar. You know, the serious, studious type. Funny what glasses will do for a person, isn't it? Due to his extraordinary pair of spectacles, Mathews does not even have to say a word in class. Hypnotized by the glasses, the instructors accept him into their fraternity of thinkers, philosophers, and even research workers. His grades are automatic due to those wonderful specs.

Sometimes when I see him, I am reminded of a young judge. Those glasses give him a solemn, dignified look; a look certainly typifying a judge still new to the bench, and filled with the seriousness of his position. You wonder if he acquired the glasses while still in law school, poring over volumes in the dead of the night while he strained his eyes in profound study.

On the other hand, you look at his glasses and they seem to take on a pious look. Mathews becomes a young preacher of the gospel, perhaps even a priest. His face, behind those glass shields, takes on a reverent look. The glasses seem to signify great purity of heart and a deep piety.

But, perhaps that is not religion we see, but the buried malice of a radical. The glasses take on a sinister look. They seem to become the badge of a communist party member or a Fellow Traveller. Perhaps behind those dark, somber glasses lurks a mind, waiting to pounce on an unsuspecting people. The glasses seem to be at home in a dark, dark, cellar, perhaps not inducing or producing plots, but certainly providing the means. Mathews the anarchist, would be helpless without his glasses.

There are times when that seemingly bewitched pair of glasses seems to portray a frustrated personality. You look through his twin windshields into his befuddled eyes and you seem to see into his tortured mind. The glasses seem to say that they have just sat through a probe into the inner recesses or realms of a dark unsettled mind by a psychiatrist.

Maybe those glasses form the personality of a ghoul; a person who takes fiendish delight in digging up bodies in the local cemetery. Sometimes the glasses seem to shine. Perhaps this is due to being sole witness to rebirth from the earth of a partially decomposed corpse.

I guess last of all, when I see D. B., I see his pair of glasses, not as supernatural objects, but as a symbol of his goodnaturedness. (A good word) When my mind comes back to earth, I know this is what he actually is, although, sometimes I wonder!

(Ed Note: This little gem was penned by a noted author on a bet that he could not write 500 words on the subject.)

"We have a long way to go. A new style of play in basketball is always hard to learn." With these words Coach Mark Haight summed up the progress of this year's Panther team. The initial turnout was 26 but has been cut down to 20. Tom Stone is out due to a football injury and Don Shebuski did not begin practice at the first of the season due to a shoulder separation suffered in the final game of the football season but is hard at work at the present.

Coach Haight expects to carry 12 on the traveling "A" team or two complete teams plus two open positions.

The early season first ten are followed by the second team. YC could field a six foot plus team this year which is a big help to any squad. "We have lots of potential but also have lots to learn" seems to sum up this year. The team should win some but it could be a long hard winter.

Panthers Receive Conference Recognition on Mythical 11

Several items of interest have appeared concerning the football season which we will note here.

Four Panthers, only two of whom have played their last football, were placed on the all-C. C. C. Conference team. Bud Glahn, John Mann, Don Shebuski and Frank Wooters are the boys who were honored. Tom Stone, Art Speece, and Bob Paine drew honorable mention. It will help the spirit of Y. C. to see their school once again getting into the spotlight.

The year's finals are now complete. They are given below with the game averages in each department:

Doane Tigers Submerge York In Seasons Opener, December 4

Friday 'Fun Nite' Sponsored by WAA

Approximately 50 students participated in the "fun nite" sponsored by the W. A. A. which was held in the gym, last Friday evening from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m.

Volley ball was the biggest attraction to the students with tumbling and ping pong running in that order. Basketball also was present.

Judging from the reaction of the students future "fun nites" are being planned. Coach Haight has made plans for girls intramurals for this year which would be something new for Y. C. women.

Freshman Kiser Leads York In Tangle With N. C. C. Team

Basketball season got underway at the city auditorium December 4. The Doane's Tigers opened with a win and York College had a loss of 77-49 at the hands of the Tigers. The Panthers were never in the lead and fell before a big and fast team. With Don Erickson and Don Pesar working a double-post the Tigers worked in for beautiful lay-up shots. Kent Newmyer led the Tigers with 16 points.

The Panthers trailed by 24-13 at the first quarter. At the half York trailed 39-23. For six minutes of the third period the Panthers failed to hit a fielder. The third quarter ended with the N. C. C. team leading 54-37. The Tigers continued to pull away and stayed out in front.

Midland, Kearney Pre-holiday Foes

Tomorrow evening the Panthers are scheduled to play their 3rd game of the season against Midland College, Fremont. With two games under their belts the Panthers should make a showing for themselves against this Nebraska College Conference team. In the first game with Midland last year Y. C. came out on the long end of a 77-71 score.

On the 18th of December the Panthers will tackle Kearney State Teachers College on the home floor for the last tangle before the holidays. Last season Kearney took two from York with 61-60, 94-61 scores.

Prior to vacation the squad will travel to Tarkio for a two day invitational tournament on December 20-21.

Kiser Leads Scoring

Jack Kiser 6'3½" freshman center led the scoring with 12 points. Frank Wooters was a close second with 11. Dave Woolery played a nice game on the backboards making 7 points. The game shows that the Panthers have possibilities. With a few games behind them they should steadily improve.

3 Fresh at Starting Posts

The starting line-up was: Forwards: Frank Wooters and Dave Woolery. Center: Jack Kiser. Guards: Bud Glahn and Jim Beaver.

The prospects of the "B" team game looked much better in the beginning. The Cubs led at the end of the third period 30-29. The final score was 60-43 in favor of the Tigers.

Campus Cholly

Hi Gang,

Things have been pretty quiet up here on the hill since vacation. I've heard some people remark that they had to come back to school to get some rest. I wonder what those people did to make them so exhausted? Interesting material for speculation, don't you think?

Can someone explain to me why some people go to the library to study and never open a book? Of course, guess you've got to waste time somewhere if you have all your studying done.

Did you notice the new "B" squad cheerleader's uniforms? Pretty neat, don't you think? So are the cheerleaders and those snazzy new yells, for that part!

Barbara Bergland was asking the other day if she could come over to the dorm some night to stay. Is John giving you a bad time, Barb? Or are you getting homesick?

Oh, yes, There is to be a new cotton dispenser installed in the main hall in Hulitt. The noise over there is getting to be too much for all concerned—The pep band, orchestra, voice students, graders outside the music room door, and now Fessler and Edie practicing trumpet duets. It's more than most ear drums will endure.

Well folks, I've got to go over to the Library and start looking up a topic for my senior paper. Mr. Bergen and Miss Callender both think it is about time for me to start if I want to graduate. See you next issue if I get all the Christmas stuff out of the way. By the way, why don't you whip up something for the Christmas contest? Think I'll write a poem or something.

It Happened At Y. C.

The 1929 football team ended the season with two wins.

On November 18, 1930 Dean Charles Bisset was tried by the Student Council for aiding freshmen in breaking initiation rules. Dean Bisset was sentenced to apologize to the upperclassmen for three successive mornings in chapel.

Freshmen abandon their green caps during the first week in December in 1933 after the girls defeated the upperclassmen in a basketball game. Had the freshmen lost the game, the caps would have stayed until Christmas.

John W. Frve, a magician representing the Midwest Assembly Company presented his act in chapel on November 15, 1934.

In 1937 the members of the Y. M.-Y. W. and the Life Work Recruits entertained the children from needy homes in York at a Christmas party in the college church.

Thirty-five students were recognized for their scholarship by the Delta Lambda Mu Association in 1939. The highest average was 93.85.

"Resolved, that the Nations of the Western Hemisphere Should Enter Into a Permanent Union," was the subject for discussion when two York College Debate teams traveled to Winfield, Kansas, to compete in the 1940 Debate Contest.

Just ten years ago, Professor James Koontz, then a senior in York College, presented his senior voice recital.

SENIORITIES

Les Hazen

Lester Hazen from The Dalles, Oregon, known as "Les," has been most prominent in his major, the drama department. President of Alpha Psi Omega, he is remembered for his part of the monster man in Arsenic and Old Lace and for his fine rendition of the Christmas narrative which has become a tradition at Y. C. He also has been active in the former Zeta organization and Pantin' Panthers. He and his fiancée, Mabel Brandenburg, plan to be married in June, after which he has one more semester, then he will teach.

I See By The Papers

By Jack Atkinson

Well, again I've let my lessons slip by while I read the exchange papers. Now I wouldn't suggest that you let your studies go by, but in your spare time if the Saturday Evening Post or Life is being used, glance through these papers. They are found on the bottom shelf of the magazine rack in the library. Here are just a few of the anecdotes I found.

The Doane Owl declares "a girl may wear a golf outfit and not play golf: a riding habit and not ride, but when she puts on a wedding gown—she means business." For the male who gets caught in such a business they add "It is a growling man who leads a dog's life."

Really though, they shouldn't growl, they just shouldn't take this little proverb from Confucius which appeared in the Spectator from McPherson College in Kansas so seriously, "Wash your face and hands in the morning and neck at night."

You kids that study so much that you haven't got time for a course in campusology should take note of this declaration that appeared in the North Central News, a good little paper from Spokane, Washington:

"The more you learn, the more you know;
The more you know, the more you forget;
The more you forget, the less you know;
The less you know, the less you forget;
The less you forget, the more you know— So why study?"

Before I go, just this word from the School Life, Tulsa, Oklahoma. "At Railroad crossings, Here's how to figger; In case of a tie The engine's bigger."

Hymn Study

Y.W.-Y.M. Feature

The challenge to all Christians that is found in the hymn "Are Ye Able" was pointed out by Naomi White, sophomore, Wichita, Kan., as she gave a hymn study for the weekly meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. The joint meeting was held in the Amadon room of Middlebrook Hall. Singing was led by Joyce Klingman, sophomore, Green, Kansas; Marion Churchill, freshman, La Crosse, Kansas, read the scripture after which Charles Chipman, junior, Sycamore, Kansas, gave the prayer.

One reason we have so many pennies in the church collection is because we have no smaller coin.

A conviction is that commendable quality in ourselves that we call bullheadedness in others.

FACULTRAITS . . .

Mr. James Koontz

"Among my other talents, I am, modestly speaking, a superb cook." Thus quoth James E. Koontz, head of the York College music department. "My specialty is an out-of-this world Italian salad, the formula of which I can't divulge—it's worth a king's ransom."

Mr. Koontz hasn't received his degrees in cooking, however, but in music. Upon his graduation from East High in Des Moines, Iowa, he attended Drake University for a year. He then came to York College and took his degree

Of varied interests, Mr. Koontz also finds time to dabble in oil painting, wood work, and copper repousse. He has a large library and especially appreciates the 19th century Romanticists, Longfellow and Thoreau.

Firmly believing that students occasionally more easily grasp ideas with a humorous approach, Mr. Koontz makes excellent use of his wit in the classroom also.

His teaching experience has included high school instruction at Ponca and Wakefield, Nebraska, prior to coming to York College.

here in 1942. Since then he has done graduate work at Wayne State Teacher's College and Drake University. He received his M. A. from the University of Nebraska in 1950 and is presently working on his Ph. D. at the same university.

A former YC student, Margaret Eutsler is now Mrs. James E. Koontz and they have two children, Pete and Kathy, nine and seven, respectively.

Chapel Notes

by Robert Herrick

The Rev. Robert Gaston, Chapel speaker, declared that 1933 was the dividing point of recent history. He made this statement on the grounds that at that time the people of the world ceased living by "principle" and turned for guidance and hope to one of two men — Adolf Hitler or F. D. Roosevelt.

"What we believe is all-important," Mr. Gaston said, "but, ultimately you have to put your faith in some person. Principles need some person to practice them or they are useless."

He then recommended the Man Jesus as one whom mankind can safely trust because of the highness of the principles He practiced. "We speak of greatness as the ability to command service, but Jesus' program is to give service." In conclusion, the recommendation was reaffirmed, ". . . it is in the power of Jesus that you and I can give service and achieve greatness in the Kingdom of God."
